

AISLER

To strengthen our team, we are currently looking to hire you as a

Customer Success Manager (f/m/x)

Simple Electronics Manufacturing. This is what AISLER is all about. We cater about 40.000 electrical engineers world-wide every day and help them realize their prototype project. By providing all components for self-assembly as a kit or we provide them with fully assembled boards. Our customers value our speed, simplicity and cost-efficiency. By using us, our customers can iterate on the product swiftly and bring it to market with ease.

What are we looking for?

While we strive for customer self-service, we provide selected customers with support and value-added services via phone.

Your tasks will include supporting selected customers in their project efforts, answering their questions, understanding their situation and ensuring their project is in safe hands with us. You don't need any knowledge about electronics, we will teach you everything you need to show our customers around on our website. What's most important is that you give the customer a comforting feeling that we are there, when needed.
